Martha was found in a pitiable cendition sitting on the steps of the "L" station at Sixty-sixth street and Col-umbus avenue. She was unable to put a foot under herself, and when Roundsman Bird, of the West Staty eighth' street station, asked her what was the matter and heard her story als heart was touched.

Martha, after accusing a prominent resident of Passaic, said her mother had rought her to Dr. Parchal's infirmary from their home, at No. 173 Harrison street, Passaic, on Wednesday last. After she had been "treated" she was sent to 'retreat" in Harlem, and, without a sesterday afternoon and was trying o make her way to the ferry with the hope of finding someone who would help her to get to Passaic when her strength gave out and Bird found her. The human phonograph got off with a running start and kept it up for several minutes. The Mayor consulted his watch but there was no heading off the orator.

Presently a folded note was slipped before the orator. He read it, flung aside his manuscript and subsided.

The note contained an advertisement in the City Record for "stop cocks" for the Department of Water Supply, with this marginal reference: "Commissioner Oakley would like to see you."

The Board sent the serious matter of the Livingsion street widening back to the local Board. This means that the project is dead so far as the Board of Estimate is now concerned.
